

Propagating Woodland Plants

John Marlin

Monday, March 10, 2014

References and Resources

Bringing Nature Home, Expanded Edition by Doug Talamy, Timber Press, 2009.
Available for purchase at IL Prairie chapter meetings for $10.00

Growing and Propagating Wild Flowers by Harry R. Phillips, et.al., University of North Carolina Press, 1985.

For ratings and locations check:

http://www.goodreads.com/book/show/259676.Growing_and_Propagating_Wild_Flowers

Invasive Plants of East Central Illinois including Recommended Actions; Alternative Plants for Landscape Applications by Master Naturalists East Central Illinois & Champaign County Master Gardeners, 2011.

<http://web.extension.illinois.edu/cfiv/downloads/26622.pdf>

List of Native Prairie Plants for Use Along Roadsides in Illinois by Kenneth R. Robertson.

<http://www.inhs.uiuc.edu/~kenr/prairietable1.html>

Native Plant Nurseries

<http://illinoisprairie.wildones.org/resources/nurseries/>

<http://grandprairiefriends.org/nurseries.php>

There are many excellent sources of native plants. Three with web sites with good information are listed below:

Prairie Moon Nursery in Wisconsin: <http://www.prairiemoon.com/>

Pizzo & Associates, Ltd in Illinois: <http://pizzo.info> [Their core focus is on Ecological Restoration]

Cardno JF New Nursery in Indiana: <http://www.jfnew.com/Nursery/NativeBrowser.aspx>

Excellent sources of information include:

USDA National Science Conservation Center PLANTS Database: <http://plants.usda.gov/>

Illinois Wildflowers: <http://www.illinoiswildflowers.info/>

Xerces Society: <http://www.xerces.org/>

Consult the Illinois Prairie Chapter's Resources section of the web site for more resources, books, and plant information - <http://illinoisprairie.wildones.org/resources/>.

To contact John Marlin

jcmarlin@sbcglobal.net

217-649-4591